Health Care Directives:

Living Will / Health Care Directive/Power of Attorney

As competent adults, we have the right to make decisions in advance as to whether to decline life support when it's clear that death is imminent or a state of coma becomes permanent.

A Living Will is a document which lets you decide whether or not to be kept on artificial life support. These documents may also appoint someone to make health care decisions on your behalf in case you are unable to do so.

Individual state law determines its legal necessities and compliance. Make certain you have an executed document in states you reside. Many have vacation home, condos or cold weather arrangements that could complicate your wishes. Consider having one for each state if you fit this pattern. Make certain key family members have copies and knowledge of location of originals.
